Teachers' Association

WARNING!

Teachers sometimes forget that social networking online is not private. Online mistakes by teachers have damaged their employment, their careers, their livelihood and their personal reputation. Don't take the risk. Keep your job and your reputation intact!

SMART ADVICE

IN SCHOOL

- Keep your password secure. Never allow access to anyone—colleagues, students, family members.
- Be aware of district policy on use of technology and follow it.
- Arrange your computer room so that you can easily supervise all students and see their screens.
- Conduct personal business on your home computer on your own time.
- Use district Web space to create class pages, not Facebook pages.
- Before using social media in your class, you must get informed consent from parents. They may not want their child using Facebook or Twitter.

WITH PARENTS

Teachers have a unique relationship with the parents of students they teach. This is a professional relationship. Do not blur the lines!

Teachers can exert control over their workday by not responding to parent e-mails outside accepted business hours.

Remember that you are a professional. Using slang in professional communications reflects poorly on you.

E-mail is not the only or the best way to respond to parent e-mails. Telephone calls and in-person meetings are often better vehicles to resolve issues.

Keep copies of any harassing communications from parents. Do not respond in kind and do not delete anything.

SOCIAL MEDIA

Facebook and Twitter are great resources. The ATA does not tell teachers to shun social media; however, teachers should be aware of the following points:

NEVER friend students or their parents on Facebook or follow them on Twitter. Keep the relationship professional and outside your social media world.

Post only images on social media, blogs and websites that you would be comfortable displaying in your class.

Ensure that your social media privacy settings are always set to the highest level.

Pseudonyms do not work. They do not protect your identity or privacy.

Do an online search of your own name from time to time. You do not know what may be out there with your name on it.

You may have a right to free speech, but you also have an obligation of fidelity to your employer and to adhere to the Code of Professional Conduct. Be careful of the positions you espouse online.
